REBUTTAL TO ARGUMENT AGAINST MEASURE EE

Measure EE's opponents don't dispute that we have a public education funding crisis and claim to support greater funding to get there. Despite record corporate tax breaks and profits, they oppose Measure EE to avoid actually paying for needed school funding.

Businesses who plan for the long term -- not just quick profits -- know how important quality schools are for our economic future. While a record number of students are graduating, and progress has been made in student learning, Measure EE is needed to address decades of underinvestment in public education, lower class sizes, and retain and attract quality teachers, counselors, nurses, librarians, and support staff.

Don't be misled -- Measure EE requires strict taxpayer protections and accountability. State law requires all funds be deposited into a separate account, and only be used for voter-approved purposes. While the law requires annual public reporting, Measure EE goes further, requiring annual audits by an independent firm and independent oversight.

Measure EE is fair and equitable. Homeowners will pay less than one quarter of the costs. Measure EE will NOT interfere with existing or new rent stabilization ordinances. Measure EE includes exemptions for property owners over 65 and certain disability recipients.

Measure EE would be the first time our students would benefit from a local revenue measure specifically for classroom teachers, resources, and instruction.

Vote YES on Measure EE to give our children the schools they deserve and the education that the 21st century world economy demands.
